

Abstract of the Disclosure

Improved Cleansing Brush with a cleansing head comprising a first rigid elongate tubular body, a second rigid elongate tubular body, a joint portion, a first resilient grip handle and a second resilient grip handle. The joint portion is comprised of a first disk member and a second disk member including an imbedded spring ball plunger assembly and a plurality of radially displaced apertures capable of receiving the bal. The first elongate body is attached at one end to the first joint member. The second elongate body is attached to on end of the second joint member. The first elongate body terminating at its opposite end in the first grip handle, and the second elongate body including near its connection with the joint member a the second grip handle. A preferred embodiment includes that the second elongate member includes an aperture to removably receive a shaft portion of the cleansing head.